Library Board Does Not Believe Monthly Rental of $75 Can be Charged for Property.

BOARD WILL REFUSE TO PAY

President Says Board of Accounts Ruled Against Paying for Street Improvement.

The library board will not give serious attention to the proposed notice of the city council that beginning July 1, 1916, a rental of $75 per month would be charged for the library building. The board does not meet until next Monday night, but it is stated authoritatively it does believe that the council is empowered to collect such a rental.

C. S. Mercer, president of the library board, said today that in his opinion the council is not vested with that power as the building belongs to the public. "The statute gives the library board the right to make any assessment not to exceed ten cents on each one hundred dollars," declared Mr. Mercer, "and it is quite apparent that this could be more than offset by rental charge if the council were empowered to collect it."

The board will pay no attention to the notice, Mr. Mercer asserted, and the council will have to prove its right to collect such rental in the court. "If that right is established in court, we will have nothing more to say, but until that time the library board will not pay the rental asked." It is also explained that while the city treasurer is also treasurer of the library board by virtue of his position, he cannot legally keep out the rental charge as all money can only be paid upon order of the board. The county treasurer sends the warrant for the library fund to the city treasurer but he receives it as the treasurer of the library board and must turn the entire amount into the treasury, it is stated.

When the streets abutting on the library property were improved with concrete the cost was paid out of city funds and it is presumed by some that if the city must keep up such improvements it is entitled to rent for the property. In answer to this, however, Mr. Mercer explained that the matter was taken up with the state board of accounts and he was informed at that time that the library funds could not be used for such purposes, and that as the property belonged to the city it was obligated by law to pay for all improvements of that character. Mr. Mercer said that he inquired of the state board of accounts at the same time if the city could collect a rental and was informed that it could not and that the library board would be held liable for any money paid for such purpose. However, this was the opinion of the state board of accounts and the matter would have to be taken to the courts for final settlement.

Relative to the notice that the library board would increase the levy from six cents to eight cents,

WASHINGTON PLANNING FOR BIG CELEBRATION

Many From Here Expecting to Make the Trip on Labor Day—Aero-plane Flights.

Many from here are expecting to go to Washington Labor Day for the celebration that has been planned there. The B. & O. Southwestern Railroad will run a special train from this city for the accommodation of its employees and their families who desire to make the trip. Other passengers will be taken at an excursion fair.

Relative to the celebration the Washington Herald says:

The Washington Labor Day celebration will be by far the biggest amusement event ever attempted in recent years along the B. & O. Southwestern. The industrial parade will be one of the handsomest ever attempted in this section. The float of the Washington Business Men's association will alone be worth coming miles to see. Immediately after the industrial parade arrives at the old fair grounds the first aeroplane flight of the day will be made by a representative of the Howell Aviation company of Chicago. The hanger will be located just south of the old judges' stand at the fair grounds and the flights will be made off to the west part of town. The First Regimental band of Vincennes of the day which will extend over the time of the dinner hour. Vaudeville companies will then take the eye of the crowd and furnish amusement for a time. At 2:30 attention will be directed to Woodlawn park where the Washington Greys and Bicknell Braves will clash in baseball. After the ball game the second aeroplane flight will take place at the fair grounds and from that on until late into the night band concerts and vaudeville stunts will hold the boards.

CONTINUANCES GRANTED IN THE GAMING CASES

Harry Heuser and Howard Railing Will be Tried Tuesday—Special Judge Asked.

The cases of the state of Indiana against Howard Railing and Harry Heuser were called before Mayor Ross this morning but continuances were taken. Railing's case is set for trial for Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock and Heuser is scheduled to be tried Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. A change of venue was taken by Heuser's lawyer, F. W. Wesner, from the city court. A special judge has not been appointed. Railing was not represented by an attorney, but it is understood that he has engaged one to look after his case.

Heuser was arrested early Sunday morning presumably for loitering and gave bond. This morning, however, a charge of gaming was preferred against him.

AUGUST SCORES A LOW TEMPERATURE

Average for Last Month Was 70.6 Degrees, Four Degrees Below Normal.

MERCURY KEPT ON THE JUMP

Bobbed up to 95 Mark on the 6th and Slipped Down to New Twenty-Year Record on 31st.

That last month was the coldest August for many years is shown by a comparison of the weather reports for this city. The normal temperature for August in this locality is 74.6 degrees and the average temperature for last month was but 70.6 degrees or a deficiency for four degrees. For the first time in years frost was reported during the month but it was not heavy enough to result in crop damage.

The monthly report on August weather which has been compiled by J. Thomas Hays, official weather observer here, shows that there was a wide range in the temperature. On the 16th the mercury shot up to ninety-five degrees and on the last day it slipped down to forty-one degrees. For the corresponding month in 1914 the highest temperature was 98 degrees and the lowest was 54 degrees. The normal for the month was 76 degrees last year as compared to 76 degrees this year.

Figuring in another way it is possible to show the great difference between August weather this year and in 1914. Last month the average maximum temperature was 81.4 degrees against 88.3 degrees in 1914. The average low temperature last month was 59.8 degrees compared with 63.8 degrees in August last year. A comparison of the daily records show that the temperature on practically each day the last month was lower than during the same month in 1914.

The greatest daily range last month was 37 degrees on the 7th and the least was 9 degrees on the 12th and 21st. In August 1914 the greatest range in twenty-four hours was recorded on the 5th and 6th, when the mercury varied 40 degrees. The least fluctuation in temperature on any day was 8 degrees on the 11th.

August 1915 also had an excess of 4.16 inches of precipitation above the normal rainfall. The total rainfall was 7.59 inches during the thirty-one days. Last year during August 7.04 inches were recorded. The greatest rainfall on twenty-four hours last month was two inches on the 20th. Rain of .01 of an inch or more was recorded on twelve days. There were three thunder storms during the month. Six days were clear, sixteen were partly cloudy and nine cloudy.

MEDORA IS READY FOR CHAUTAUQUA

Program of Unusual Merit Has Been Secured for the First Five-Day Assembly.

OPENS SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Program Includes Such Lecturers as Dr. Charles L. Seaholes, Chas. Brandon Booth and Others.

Medora is making extensive arrangements for its first chautauqua which will open Sunday, September 5 and will close Thursday night, September 9. The program was contracted for from the Central Community Chautauqua System and contains many unusually strong numbers.

Chautauqua boosters there have been active for more than two weeks advertising the program and inviting people for miles around to attend. Several long automobile tours have been arranged and nearly every machine in the town was in the parades. The automobiles were decorated with chautauqua pennants and streamers and at all towns short stops were made while speakers told of the meritorious program.

It is expected that quite a number from here will attend the Medora assembly. Several automobiles will likely make the trip Sunday and also on several of the week days.

The opening concert will be given Sunday afternoon by the Metropolitan Glee Club after which Dr. Charles L. Seaholes will lecture on the subject, "Is Life Worth Living?" The Glee Club will give another concert in the evening and Dr. Seaholes will speak on "The Man With the Pick."

The Venetian Players will furnish the music for both the afternoon and night entertainments on the second day. They will be assisted by Miss Elma B. Smith, reader. In the evening Charles Brandon Booth will lecture on "Reclaiming the Pioneer."

The third day's program will consist of solos by Miss Mae Shepard, a play by Herbert and Floy Sprague and a lecture by Douglas Malloch on "This Town of Yours."

An unusually strong program is promised on the fourth day when the musical program will be given by Vitale's Italian Marine band and Harry G. Hill will speak on "Sugar for Sour Grapes." The band will give the entire evening program.

The fifth day's program consists of the Swiss Alpine Singers and Yodlers, and lectures by Hans P. Freese. His subjects are announced as "The Inside of Mormonism," and "The Mormon Church in Politics."

It is reported that the sale of season tickets at $1.50 each has been good and it is thought that with the attendance that is expected the chautauqua will be a paying proposition.

REPORTED THAT GERMAN U-BOAT IS CAPTURED

Office of White Star Liner Says This is the Rumor Current in Liverpool.

By United Press.

New York, September 2.—That the German submarine that sank the Arabic was captured and not sunk by British war ships was the story brought here today by an officer of the White Star Liner Adriatic and was based on reports current in Liverpool.

Right after the Arabic was sunk the report reached Liverpool that the German U-boat was captured, said the Adriatic officer who asked that his name be withheld. The story in shipping circles was that she was the latest type and the most powerful in the German navy, he said. It was reported, he continued, that she carried two crews and good size guns for shelling vessels that might try to escape her. The Adriatic officer said the German navy officials had got wind of the report that the U-boat was captured and that might be the reason for Germany's hasty compliance with American wishes.

GERMANY DEMANDS FREEDOM OF SEAS

Imperial Government Also Asks Recognition of Rights of Jews and Freedom for Poland.

STATEMENT FROM EMBASSY

Memorandum Sent State Department Was Regular and Satisfactory But Quite Informal.

(By Chas. P. Stewart, United Press Correspondent)

Washington, September 2.—Germany wants peace on these terms: Freedom of the seas. Freedom for Poland.

World wide recognition of the rights of Jews.

The Kaiser's prime purpose in the memorandum to his ambassador was the enlistment of the world's co-operation for peace.

This statement was given out from the German embassy in Washington today. It was not official but it was authoritative.

The state department expects from Germany a more detailed statement than the memorandum gave on the subject of submarine warfare.

The memorandum, it was stated, was regular and satisfactory but quite informal. The assumption was that a fuller message was being prepared. Officials said probably the memorandum was hastened forward ahead of the formal communication for the purpose of preventing delay in explanations concerning the Arabic from breeding anti-German feeling in the United States.

No doubt the message would be acceptable as the memorandum that preceded it. The Arabic explanation would have to first come, however, it was said.

CARDINAL GIBBONS HAS WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE

Church Dignitary Declares That He is Pleased With the Outlook for European Peace.

By United Press.

Washington, September 2.—After his White House conference today, Cardinal Gibbons said he had discussed peace with the President. He declined to give the details of the conference but admitted he had received a message from the pope. The cardinal expressed satisfaction over the settlement of the late diplomatic trouble with Germany.

Late today Cardinal Gibbons admitted that he presented President Wilson with a note from Pope Benedict concerning European peace.

"My conference was extremely satisfactory," he said. "I hope in a short time to formulate a proper expression of the meeting. I expect to take up with Mr. Lansing a similar line of discussion."

"Do you consider Germany's recent action agreeing to a modified submarine warfare as favorable to a European peace?" he was asked.

"Highly favorable," said the cardinal. "And it makes the situation much more easy of accomplishment to bring about peace."

GERMAN WAR CRISIS AVERTED

Accepts Principles Laid Down by U. S.

GREAT DIPLOMATIC VICTORY

Secretary Lansing States German Ambassador's Message Is Recognition of Principle For Which Wilson Has Been Contending.

Washington, Sept. 2.—Apparently the menace of German submarine operations to the friendly relations between the United States and Germany ended when the German ambassador informed Secretary Lansing that it is the intention of his government not to sink passenger liners without warning and without regard for the safety of non-combatants on board.

The German ambassador also shares the view that the question which had been brought to a verge of danger, is settled. In diplomatic circles generally the crisis is regarded as completely over. The task of adjusting the details of a settlement by Germany for what has occurred and providing for the future is believed to be simple.

While this communication is not in itself conclusive, making no mention of the treatment to be accorded non-passenger carrying merchantment, it is regarded here as demonstrating beyond question that Germany has yielded to the United States and that there will be no further serious trouble over this issue. As Secretary Lansing himself said, the ambassador's communication is interpreted as a recognition of the "fundamental principle for which President Wilson has been contending."

While various interpretations may be put upon the acceptance by Germany of the principles for which the United States has been contending, her action undoubtedly will be regarded by the world as a great diplomatic victory for the United States. In official circles here and in diplomatic quarters as well, it is held that the success of this government with Germany on the submarine issue will greatly strengthen the position of the United States in the eyes of the world, particularly in reference to the war in Europe.

Many important results will flow from the removal of the danger of a break with Germany. One of the first will be the renewal of efforts to obtain from Great Britain a larger measure of respect for the rights of American trade. In official quarters particular emphasis is laid on the fact that the president's hands are now freed and that he can proceed to demand observance of the law from Great Britain without fear that he will become involved in a dangerous situation as regards Germany.

While Germany's action and change of attitude is regarded by the administration as bringing within close view the end of the dangerous submarine operations, officials are still maintaining their attitude of waiting for Germany to move further and make unmistakably clear its informal and official manner its reply to the demands of the United States.

The next move by Germany is expected to be a statement regarding the Arabic incident.

VON BERNSTORFF

German Ambassador Who Wins Triumph as Berlin's Spokesman.

Washington, Sept. 2.—Count von Bernstorff, German ambassador to the United States, has won an individual triumph in bringing about what now promises to be a peaceful outcome to the controversy between the United States and Germany over the latter's submarine campaign. Von Bernstorff, ever since the sinking of the Lusitania, has worked hard to avoid a rupture with the United States.

EXPLOSION WRECKS MUNITION PLANT

Six Men Hurt; One Probably Will Die.

Hastings (on the Hudson), N. Y., Sept. 2.—A violent explosion here in the sheet room of the National Conduit and Cable company, which is heavily interested in the manufacture of war munitions, resulted in the injury of six men. One of them, Patrick Martin, tender of the retort in which copper is melted, will probably die. The explosion threw nearly all the employees of the plant off their feet and shook the whole town of Hastings.

At the offices of the company it was stated that the explosion was caused by cold water getting into the retort in which there was a quarter of a ton of molten copper. The retort, weighing about a ton, was burst and the molten metal showered about the room, setting fire to the clothing of the six men stationed there.

Three weeks ago a mysterious fire burned out a central electric switchboard, which controlled several buildings of the plant, causing a damage of $3,500. At the time this was generally accredited to German sympathizers. Two watchmen of German birth have also committed suicide within the last month or so because they could not bear to work for a plant turning out munitions against the fatherland.

FIRST EXPERIMENTAL SALE

Effort to Bring Grower and Producer Closer Together.

Catskill, N. Y., Sept. 2.—The first of the series of experimental sales given by the New York state foods and markets department to bring growers and producers in closer touch was held at Red Hook, 30,000 barrels of Hudson river apples being offered for sale in lots to the highest bidder.

While the sales were not up to expectations of some of the promoters of the movement, a large number of buyers were present and bidding on many of the lot was spirited. On the largest lot, 2,600 barrels from the W. S. Teator orchard a bid of $3.12½ was refused. Another orchard was purchased by Donner Brothers, of Newark at $2.75.

Run Over by Mower. Petersburg, Ind., Sept. 2.—Bud Eaton, a farmer living near Winslow, Pike county, was seriously hurt when a team he was driving to a mow ran away. He was putting a cycle in the mow when the horses became frightened and started to run. The machine passed over his back inflicting painful wounds. One of the horses was caught in the mow and a leg was cut off.

Grey Takes Short Vacation. London, Sept. 2.—Sir Edward Grey is leaving the foreign office for a short vacation. During his absence the Marquis of Crewe will be in charge of the foreign office.

Regarded Lost. London, Sept. 2.—While the admiralty is maintaining silence in the matter, there is no doubt that the submarine which sank the Arabic is now at the bottom of the sea.

TEUTONS TAKE LUZK FORTRESS

Russians Retire From Zborow In Galicia.

DARK SITUATION FOR CZAR

Reported Petrograd Is Getting Ready to Flee From Onward March of Invaders—Teutons Believed to Have Designs on Moscow.

London, Sept. 2.—The Austro-Hungarian and German troops have captured the Russian fortress of Luzk, thirty-five miles east of the Galician border, a modern stronghold erected within recent years to ward off possible Austrian aggression.

The fall of Luzk is, if anything, more of a surprise than the speedy capitulation of Brest-Litovsk. It was a fortress of considerable strength, and was in every respect modern. The German advance upon this position was one of the speediest of the war, which leads to the conclusion that the Russians probably dismantled the guns and prepared for retreat long before the German guns were within range. If this was the case, the victory was an empty one for the Teutons, though it would be useless to minimize the importance of the stronghold as a strategic position and the degree in which its loss emphasizes the importance of Russian arms at this time.

Zborow, on the Stripa river, in Galicia, where for twenty-four hours the retreating Russians held up the Austrian advance by furious counter attacks, was literally turned into a mass of wreck and ruin by the Austrian siege pieces and the Russians gave way and began a hasty retirement.

Grodno, far to the north, is making its last stand. The forces of Field Marshal von Hindenburg drew their heavy artillery to the western front of the fortress and began to hurl into the stronghold the huge shells which no fortification has yet been able to withstand. The position is practically invested, according to the Berlin dispatches, and the fear is felt here that at Grodno the Germans are on the verge of trapping and capturing an enormous number of men.

The fall of Luzk and Zborow was announced at Vienna in the following brief statement:

"Luzk fortress has fallen. The Russians were compelled to cross the river Str. General Bothmers occupied Zborow."

The fall of Luzk and the collapse of the Russian resistance on the Stripa in Galicia only accentuates the character of the Russian situation. That situation is generally and openly regarded as the darkest since the war began. The ease with which the Austro-Germans took Luzk forbodes, in the minds of military critics, a quick successive capitulation of Dubno and Powno, two fortresses built in support of Luzk, the first situated thirty miles to the southeast and the second thirty miles east.

In a word there is no indication that the Russians have been able to secure sufficient ammunition to make anything more than a temporary stand at any point on the 500-mile eastern frontier. Furthermore, as is pointed out here and in the dispatches from Petrograd, the impetuosity with which the Germans have hammered forward since the fall of the Kovno-Brest Litovsk line does not indicate that they are about to rest on their past victories.

Some indication of the wild rumors to which the retreat of the Russian armies is leading may be found in the publication in a Danish paper of a statement, said to have come from the most authentic source, that the Russians are beginning to dismantle Petrograd preparatory to its evacuation. From German, Scandinavian and Russian sources, reports continue to come that the Germans are gathering new momentum for a campaign through southern Russia with Kiev and Odessa as the goal; that they are preparing to march through the Baltic province to Petrograd, and that they are to direct their chief efforts toward reaching Moscow over the same route that Napoleon followed.

SENATE IN EXTRA SESSION

May Be Called In October, Says Senator Kern.

Washington, Sept. 2.—Before Senator Kern left for Indianapolis, he made known that an extra session of the senate may be held, beginning early in October and merging into the regular session of congress in December. There is no probability at all of both branches of congress being called in extra session, he said.

The extra senate session, he stated, would be devoted entirely to the business of the senate and to disposing of such matters as must be got rid of before the decks can be cleared for the regular legislative program next winter. The principal business will be to confirm nominations, act on treaties and revise the rules of the senate so as to provide for closure.

Forty-five Democratic senators have pledged Senator Kern that they will vote for closure. A majority of the senate is forty-nine.

COL. E. M. HOUSE

New York and Texas Capitalist Who Has Been Wilson's Adviser.

TEXT OF BERNSTORFF'S ASSURANCES TO U. S.

Washington, Sept. 2.—Count von Bernstorff, German ambassador to the United States, sent Secretary Lansing this letter:

"My Dear Mr. Secretary: With reference to our conversation of Wednesday I beg to inform you that my instructions concerning our answer to your last Lusitania note contains the following passage: 'Liners will not be sunk by our submarines without warning and without safety of the lives of non-combatants, provided that the liners do not try to escape or offer resistance.'"

"Although I do not wish to discuss the Lusitania question till the Arabic incident has been definitely and satisfactorily settled, I desire to inform you of the above because this policy of my government was decided on before the Arabic incident occurred. 'I have no objection to your making any use you may please of the above information.'"

"I remain, my dear Mr. Lansing, 'Very sincerely yours, 'BERNSTORFF.'"

FEAR INVASION BY MEXICANS

Troops and Armed Citizens Guard Border.

APPEAL FOR MORE SOLDIERS

Arrival of Gen. Orozco's Body Said to Have Been Set For Reprisals by Attack on Americans For Death of Mexican Chief.

Galveston, Texas, Sept. 2.—Awaiting what they believe will be a general invasion by Mexicans as a result of the killing of General Orozco, all the towns and ranches along the Mexican border are up in arms.

At various points along the Rio Grande bands of armed Mexicans have been seen. They were mounted and were galloping along as if looking for orders to cross into Texas. Peace officers and citizens along the border sent an appeal for more soldiers and rangers. They assert that trouble is sure.

Mercedes, Harlinger, Del Rio and a score of smaller towns are closely guarded by armed citizens and soldiers. Ranches all over the border section are guarded by cowboys and rangers, heavily armed.

Several suspicious Mexicans were arrested in the border country, but it is believed that only one Mexican was killed.

Orozco's followers are to join Carranza's army against all comers, according to reliable information from the Rio Grande country.

El Paso, Texas, Sept. 2.—Colonel Omar Bundy, temporarily in command of the United States troops at El Paso, conferred with Mayor Lee, Police Chief Johnson and secret service representatives of the United States, regarding the reported unrest of a large part of the Mexican population in Mexico, following the killing of General Orozco and four associates by Texas range men on Monday.

There have been rumors of reprisals, timed to take place with the arrival here of Orozco's body or during the funeral. As a precaution heavier patrols of troops were placed in the city and arrangements were made to meet the train when it arrived with Orozco's body. Mrs. Orozco went down to Van Horn with an undertaker to get the body.

A. B. C. negotiations in the Mexican trouble may bring about a revolution in at least one of the A. B. C. countries, according to well defined information here. It came out with the appearance here of a number of Villa officials en route to Guatemala. They say that the Carranza faction which oppose the A. B. C. plan, has been encouraging a revolution in Guatemala by allowing Guatemalan agitators to equip, in Mexican territory. Carrancistas hold the Mexican states bordering on Guatemala.

DROPS DEAD AT BIG FIRE

Dies as Result of Excitement During $35,000 Blaze.

Winamac, Ind., Sept. 2.—Mrs. H. C. Stephens, wife of a prominent physician, dropped dead on the street at Star City as a result of the excitement attending a fire which destroyed the Star City grain elevator. Eight thousand bushels of oats, 2,000 bushels of wheat and 500 bushels of corn were destroyed in the building and the loss was $35,000, nearly covered by insurance.

Much of the grain, which had been harvested in wet weather, was damp and it is believed that spontaneous combustion caused the fire.

The Logansport fire department was sent to Star City on a special train when it appeared that the business district of the little town would be swept by the flames. It saved the Kerner and Blue stores, the postoffice and the bank, which were threatened. The elevator was owned by John Phillips.

NEGRO CHAUFFEUR IS CONFESSED MURDERER

Admits Part in Killing Rhode Island Doctor.

Providence, R. I., Sept. 2.—The double shooting mystery of Dr. C. Franklin Mohr and Miss Emily G. Burger, resulting in the doctor's death, on the Barrington road, has been cleared up by the confession of the colored chauffeur, George W. Healis, that he and another colored fellow, Victor Brown, formerly employed as a stable boy by Mohr, had planned robbery, but had not intended the murder of the couple.

Healis met Brown in this city last Monday, when the robbery was planned, on his motorcycle, the scheme being to have Brown go down the road some time in advance and lie in wait in the bushes by the roadside, where the automobile was to be held up for pretended overhauling of the motor.

There enters into the affair the element of revenge on the part of Brown, who was discharged by Mohr on suspicion that he was in league with Mrs. Mohr, based upon the fact that the wife, two weeks ago, was seen to speak to Brown as he was passing through the grounds.

Suspicion was directed toward Healis from the beginning and Chief Robbins of Barrington, picked up enough information to confirm this. Miss Burger was able to give material assistance when she told how Healis calling for her at her home and telling her that the doctor wished she would go to Newport with him.

Where Brown went to he did not know, but he gave his accomplices address as Roxbury, Mass., and the Boston police were requested to pick him up. Healis said that Brown was very sore over his peremptory discharge and had declared that "something was going to happen very soon."

MISS DYE SPEAKS AT MARION

Pageants Recommended as Most Appropriate For Centennial Year.

Marion, Ind., Sept. 2.—Miss Charity Dye, of Indianapolis, member of the Indiana centennial commission spoke before the teachers of Grant county in their annual institute, and also addressed the Grant County Historical Society.

Pageants were recommended by Miss Dye as a proper means of expression of the development of any county or division of the state in next year's centennial celebration. She advised that the impression that the centennial pageants were to be something like the popular forms of amusement shows be counteracted, for it was her statement that any pageant which would not leave the community with higher ideals was a failure.

BREAD-MAKING

Some women consider bread-making a part of housework to be avoided. The reason probably is that their idea of bread-making is based upon the old laborious method known as the slow-rising process.

In the quick-rising process, bread can be made easily in from three to five hours' time, according to the amount of yeast used. Here is a recipe for making bread by the quick-rising process, which will make four standard sized loaves. If only two loaves are desired, use just half the quantities: One quart liquid (water, water and milk, milk); two level tablespoons sugar, three level tablespoons butter or lard, two level teaspoons salt,  $\frac{1}{4}$  cake to 4 cakes compressed yeast, approximately three quarts of flour.

Place the sugar, salt and shortening (lard or butter) in the mixing bowl. Put the yeast in a small amount of water to soften. Heat the milk or other liquid to scalding point and pour it over the three ingredients in the mixing bowl. Allow the mixture to cool to about 72 degrees. When the temperature is right, add the dissolved yeast. If the liquid is too warm, there is danger of killing the yeast and making soggy, sour bread.

Add the flour a little at a time, beating the mixture thoroughly. When it is too stiff to beat any longer, place the dough on the bread board and begin kneading, adding flour gradually. Flours differ in powers of absorption and it is not always possible to name the best amount to use. Make it a point always not to use all the flour specified unless you find it necessary. Soft dough makes tender bread. When the dough will not stick to the fingers in kneading, enough flour has been added and it is stiff enough to use. If the dough is too stiff, it will rise slowly and may be dry after baking.

The mixing and the kneading have a great deal to do with the texture and quality of the bread. Thorough mixing distributes the yeast evenly through the dough. Kneading adds the oxygen from the air, which is necessary for proper rising. Bread should be kneaded until the dough is smooth in appearance and has a satiny gloss on the surface.

Clean the mixing bowl and grease with butter. Put dough in the bowl and cover with a plate or lid. As the proper temperature for the working of the yeast is from 70 to 72 degrees, the dough should be kept near this temperature while rising. If you have no thermometer, feel the dough. It should be slightly warm to the touch—the rising must not continue too long—only until the dough reaches double its original size. When it has risen sufficiently, knead it down thoroughly to break up the bubbles in the dough and distribute the gas evenly through it.

After the second thorough kneading, the dough may be divided into loaves, shaped and placed in the pans for its second rising. When once more it has doubled in size, it is ready for the oven. Bake in individual pans for about one hour and fifteen minutes. It should be so thoroughly baked that when pressed upon it will immediately spring out upon release of pressure. The color should be golden brown, top, sides and bottom. When cut, it should have a soft, velvety texture. It should slice smoothly, without crumbling. The holes should be numerous and small. Occasional large holes show insufficient kneading. The color should be of a slightly creamy white.

BUILDING SIXTEEN INCH GUNS FOR U. S. COAST DEFENSE.

New Weapons Will Be Most Effective In All the World.

In improving the coast defenses of the United States the government will install sixteen inch guns instead of the fourteen inch weapons now used.

It is believed the first step in the direction of arming the coast defenses with the larger guns will be an authorization of four for the proposed forts at Cape Henry, Va. A special committee of the board of fortifications has recommended that sixteen inch guns take the place of the fourteen inch guns.

Brigadier General E. M. Weaver, chief of coast artillery, favors the larger weapons.

"The sixteen inch coast defense gun has not been built yet, but the plans are ready," said an army expert. "When completed this weapon will be the greatest we have had in the coast defense service. It will send a projectile that weighs a ton more than fifteen miles."

"The projectile will weigh 2,200 pounds, which is 600 pounds heavier than the one used in the latest fourteen inch gun. Congress may be asked to place some of these new guns on the Panama canal to take the place of the guns there now.

"The fourteen inch gun, it is argued by many specialists in big guns, shoots far enough, but the sixteen inch weapon carries a heavier projectile and has greater ballistic powers."

"The new gun will be more powerful than the sixteen inch guns which will soon be placed in the Panama canal fortifications. It will be mounted on disappearing carriages of the most improved type. It will be more powerful than any other fortification gun in the world."

"Once the sixteen inch gun is placed in all of the coast fortifications of the United States the nation will be safe from attack from the sea."

DROPS TO NEW LOW RECORD

English Pound Breaks in Value, Effecting Foreign Exchange.

New York, Sept. 1.—A break in the value of the British pound sterling to \$4.57  $\frac{1}{2}$  not only established a new low record, but brought the problem of foreign exchange to a serious point.

It was an overnight break of  $\frac{3}{4}$  cents and was  $\frac{1}{2}$  cents below the mark set weeks ago by bankers and financial men generally as the so-called "irreducible minimum" which, when reached, would cause British buyers to seek other markets in which to place their orders for those imports obtainable elsewhere than in this country.

In this category are embraced food-stuffs, manufactured goods and many other products largely traded in—in fact, almost everything save actual munitions of war.

No such violent break had ever before been recorded in the foreign exchange markets here. Recent shipments of gold to this city, including the arrival of $19,500,000 from England, have been unavailing to change prices for the better. Bankers agree that vast sums of gold—not less than $500,000,000—must be sent to even up the tremendous balance of trade.

DISCOVERS HIS COUNTRY.

A well known American newspaper correspondent recently returned to the United States after spending a year in the war torn countries of Europe and discovered anew the priceless heritage of American citizenship and peace. While abroad he spent much of his time at the front and had become accustomed to a life where home, education, music and art were buried under the war and all the terror it brings. For a year he had talked and written in terms of trenches, munitions, killed, wounded and prisoners. He had personally witnessed the horrors wrought by the conflict, the wrecked homes, the shattered ambitions and the lost fortunes. He had witnessed the darkest side of civilization and was able to make a comparison of the conditions there and here.

After a year of such life it is no wonder that he was thrilled when the ship's lights were turned on the American flag as a safeguard against submarines that might be lurking in the depth of the sea in the hope of finding an unprotected ship of the enemy. It is not at all surprising that he had a new feeling of patriotism as the ship approached the American harbor and he realized that he was coming to a country of peace, his native land. It would only be natural that he would recall that the best of life has been untouched and that with peace America's future is brighter than ever before.

Living as we do in a land that has maintained her neutrality we do not fully realize what it means. Like this correspondent we do not know our country. We do not appreciate the worth of the American flag and the many great things for which it stands. Frequently American citizens discover their own country in a most unexpected way and when they do their loyalty, patriotism and devotion is more ardent than before.

The new daily and weekly newspaper that was started at Scottsburg recently has closed up shop on account of lack of patronage. The people who paid their subscriptions got the experience. The public of today demands a certain standard of a newspaper and that can be maintained only with a heavy expenditure of money. The expense of a newspaper plant has grown more rapidly during the last few years than in almost any other line of business. Advertising in a newspaper is worthless without the circulation back of it. Advertisers spend their money for newspaper space as an investment and when spent judiciously it brings big returns. But the time is past and gone when advertisements are contracted for solely on the ground of sympathy and charity. This is a fact that is frequently overlooked by people who venture into the newspaper field with their eyes blinded to the real situation.

If the competing highways are successful ventures, and it is believed they will be, the Dixie Highway from the North to the South will have hard sledding in getting very much of the travel. The competing roads will be as widely advertised as the Dixie road and will have many superior advantages over it. Again it will be shown that there is nothing in a name alone.

In a few days the fall term of the public schools will open. It is highly important that all pupils enter the first day. They lose much by enrolling a week or so late as the course for the entire term is planned on the first few days. Parents ought to see that their children enroll promptly.

Harry Thaw, erstwhile murderer, escaped inmate from an insane asylum and free citizen, has applied for a divorce. After the decree is granted it is hoped that he will live in silence.

Russian historians will have a pretty task in explaining the defeats and losses during the present war. It would be interesting to read the histories that are used in the Russian schools a century from now.

FLAG GUARANTEES SAFETY

American Passengers Aboard U. S.
Ships Sense New Thrill When Lights Fall on National Colors.

(By William G. Shepherd United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, August 19—When we dropped down the river toward the sea, from Liverpool, evening was falling. All about us were war ships. The great Mauretania, loaded with 8,000 Irishmen, their hearts still aching and their throats still hoarse still hoarse from their good-byes, passed us, headed for the Dardanelles.

Workmen were thrusting long wooden arms out from the side of our ship; at the end of each arm was a great electric light that threw its rays back against the hull of the boat. I looked down and I saw that the lamps were throwing their white lights on the words, painted in giant black letters, "New York, America."

German eyes looked up at us from under the sea that night, beyond a doubt, for the Orduña, a boat that passed us, was almost torpedoed not a great distance from us. That rocking, rolling, electric sign helped me to discover America afresh. Under its charm we went our way, safe in the pathway of death. For a year I had seen nothing but war; I had seen everything go down before it and I had forgotten that there was one spot or one flag in the world that was safe. The thrill that comes from realizing under such circumstances that there is one flag that is safe and that it is your flag is almost overwhelming.

Eight nights later, on a summer Sunday evening, we approached New York. On our left the lights of the quiet Jersey villages began to blink. On our right the fiery outlines of old Coney Island grew brighter and brighter, as night deepened.

Standing on the deck Henry P. Davison, a partner in the J. P. Morgan firm, one of America's younger masters of finance, looked upon the growing glory of New York's evening sky line and said:

"There's no country like it in all the world."

That comes as near being an interview as Henry P. Davison ever gave to a newspaper man, but there'll be many a time that he'll speak a thousand words and not say one-fourth as much.

You have been in London and seen all the gentle, gne things of life forgotten; you have been in Berlin and heard nothing of good, but all of hate; you have been in Vienna and found its art and music put aside for war; you have been in Paris and found its beauties shrouded in black sorrow; you have been in Paris and found its beauties shrouded in black sorrow; you have been in Buda Pesth and found its glories blotted out by war; in Rome you had found war-mad men and war-mad women, instead of the happy Italians of other days. Everywhere you have been, it has seemed to you that the world had come to a standstill, for war.

And now, on this soft summer Sunday evening, here lies New York, its lights aglow, no Zeppelin horror hanging over it; music, art, homelike, happiness—all the things that are dead in Europe—and behind it, thousands of miles behind its nightlit sky lines, stretches America, clear away to the Pacific, where your United States, in the midst of the world war, is celebrating the forgotten triumphs of civilization in the two California expositions. And it is your country. You have discovered America, with your heart as well as your brain.

Within a few days I was within the heart of the west. Everywhere I saw happy people, and I had been used to seeing only sad people. Everywhere I saw smiles, and I had been used to seeing only strained, unsmiling faces. Everywhere, everybody was busy. I heard talk, talk, of busy, earnest men; I missed the hate that I had become accustomed to; I missed War; I saw none of its terrible mark. And every minute I thrilled at the thought.

"This wonderful, peaceful country is my country."

And I kept wondering why all those about me didn't thrill at the idea. But they all seemed to take it for granted. Americans, at home here, I discovered, see one side of the picture only. Most of them haven't discovered America yet.

That this is a wonderful United States, worth fighting for and dying for, if necessary, is an idea that doesn't seem to have been driven home to Americans by the war in Europe. You need to have been in Europe, where men are fighting and dying for their countries, to realize what a short, easy and sudden step it might be to leave your daily business and step into an American army. You see a United States whose national welfare might, at any time, become supreme over your own personal welfare; a United States, whose great history may sweep you out of your own little daily pathway from the home to the office and carry you off, life, fortune and all, on its restless tide. That's a new kind of a United States, that this generation has not had to know.

Where Education Fails.

All over the country, at ever-increasing cost, we are constructing splendid buildings for the service of primary and higher instruction of all the children and young men and women. We are training teachers from the scholastic standpoint, and are trying to make the schools serve in a better way the individual preparation for industry, commerce, and agriculture. But we are almost wholly failing to utilize the educational system for the specific training of citizens in their various duties as such. The consequence is that the standards and methods of our political and organized life are lower than those of our private life. There is perfect consistency between the ideals of those who glorify peace, and the aims of those who would train every American boy to be ready to help maintain peace in any time of emergency or danger. We are not getting anything like the social and public values that we ought to be reaping from our investment in schools and education. Scholarship is not popular in our universities and colleges. Athletic life furnishes no proper outlet, because it is vicarious and quasi-professional. A few young gladiators monopolize the athletic activity of our institutions, and the vast majority are taught to look on and yell for the maintenance of college or school spirit.

Thus our great institutions, though more and more costly in their appointments and maintenance, are painfully aware that they are not producing the results that ought to be manifest. Many of their students,—a possible majority,—cannot write a well-phrased or correctly spelled letter. They do not know the Bible, or Shakespeare, or Charles Dickens. They are not capable of reading the editorial page of a good newspaper. This criticism does not apply to all, but to what in at least a good many large institutions must include fully half of the undergraduates. It would be unjust to locate blame in any specific quarter. The faults lie deep in our current life, and are widespread. There are great resources of worth and of power latent in those very youths who do not find themselves absorbed in the study of textbooks, or held to discipline by the sternness of the football coach. But there is a gospel of social and public duty, accompanied by certain practical applications, that might be used to bring out the earnestness and personal worth of thousands of these young men. They should be strongly impressed with the gravity of the issues of this momentous time in which we live. Without much if any additional burden to the taxpayers, every one of these students of high schools, normal schools, colleges, and universities could be so taught and trained as to be well prepared to exercise many of the usual, and some of the unusual, duties of citizenship. Such training would benefit students in their health and morals, would give them a finer sense of private as well as of public duty, and would furnish them with various kinds of practical experience and knowledge that would redound to the welfare of our political and governmental life.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Review of Reviews for September.

IVANOFF'S FORCES ESCAPE THE TRAP

Petrograd Dispatch Says Russians

With Small Loss.

10,000 PRISONERS ARE TAKEN

Russian Report Declares That Austro-Germans Have Lost Teavily in Galicia.

By United Press.

Petrograd, September 2—General Ivanoff's army has escaped the latest trap set by the Austro-Germans. The fortress of Lusk has been evacuated by the Russians with scarcely any loss in men or guns and the Slavs falling back in the direction of Dubno have taken 10,000 prisoners.

The Austrian plan to pierce the Russian line in this region rolled up the right flank of General Ivanoff's forces and cut off the Russian army corps operating in Galicia has broken down.

The enemy has made no material gain but has suffered heavily in killed and wounded. The Slav line has already been reformed. Half million Austro-Germans are engaged in attempting to sweep the Russians out of Galicia, but despite their determined efforts supported by heavy shell fire the Germans have been unable to break the Slav front.

The following figures which show the financial relations of the United States with the allied war nations are interesting at this time:

Balance in favor of the United States in trade with Great Britain, Canada, France and Russia in fiscal year ended June 30 was $1,123,762,000.

Gold to meet the indebtedness has been sent to this country by Canada, Great Britain and France since Jan. 1 totaling $185,000,000.

Foreign owned American securities have been brought back and sold on the American market to an estimated amount of $250,000,000.

Government loans and credits announced as made in this country to Canada, Russia and France, amount to $196,000,000.

Despite these payments, an estimated total of $631,000,000 in gold securities and loans, sterling exchange sold recently at 4.62½, or at a discount of more than 5 per cent.

Gold holdings of the Bank of England are $336,504,000, as compared with $227,037,000 a year ago.

Gold holdings of the Bank of France are $853,264,000, as compared with $828,268,000 at the outbreak of the war.

Gold holdings of Russia are $844,340,000, as compared with $861,615,000 a year ago.

Gold coin and bullion were held in the United States treasury July 30 last to the amount of $1,177,131,169.

The total reserves of the national banks of the United States on their last report to the comptroller of the currency were $1,840,000,000.

The surplus of these reserves above legal requirements was $778,000,000.

This surplus reserve is estimated by Comptroller Williams as "sufficient to justify an expansion of credit of $2,000,000,000 to $3,000,000,000."

30,000 ENGINEERS ORGANIZE.

Volunteer Reserve of Experts to Aid
Country if War Comes.

The United States soon is to have something it never before had and, in the opinion of military men, urgently needs as a measure of self defense—a reserve force of 30,000 trained and skilled engineers, to be immediately available in time of war and to supplement the admittedly efficient but numerically inadequate corps of engineers of the regular army.

The foundation of the present plan was laid in the spring at a conference among several representative engineers, each standing at the head of his profession in his own specialty. Promoters in Chicago say that Secretary Garrison attended the conference. At this meeting the general scheme of organization was drawn up. The war department since has been engaged, it is said, under the secretary's direction, in working out the details and planning a bill to be introduced in congress next session to embody in legislation the formation of the corps.

The Cut Price Boot Shop is attractive to the youngsters of the city on account of the exhibition of a small automobile in the display window. The machine is more interesting after the boys read the announcement that it is to be given away.

The Passing of the Steamboat.
“For the long years the struggle between the railroads and the steamboats went on. Millions of dollars were invested in the great white vessels that glided up and down the rivers, but they dropped out of the race and became the sport of time. Some far-seeing owners knowing the fight lost for all time, dismantled their vessels. Others more obstinate kept their boats trim and clean. Through the long idle summers they would sit in the pilot house watching the railroad engines write, in letters of smoke against the sky, the story of their doom. The hungry race for cargoes was responsible for more than one river tragedy. The wind seemed to carry the news of a waiting shipment and the idle boats raced to the scene like a school of sharks.”

Another Master Serial Story

By George Randolph Chester and Lillian Chester

Author of "Get-Rich-Quick Wallinford," "The Jingo," etc.

ILLUSTRATIONS BY RHODES

THOSE who have read the "Wallinford" stories appreciate the ability of George Randolph Chester to write gripping, entertaining and absorbing fiction. In our next serial, "The Ball of Fire," he has collaborated with his wife and produced a new kind of story, fully up to the standard of any previous effort.

"The Ball of Fire" is not merely an interesting work of fiction, but is a solid and substantial study of conditions that obtain in certain localities, among certain people, exposing the commercialism of some large city churches. One of the principal characters is literally a "malefactor of great wealth." Against this character is set an earnest young rector. Then comes the girl, Gail. She sets all New York agog with her beauty, charm and daring cleverness. The rector and the millionaire are soon among those scheming for her hand, but not until the end does she make her choice.

A Narrative of American Life Which Mingles Humor, Sentiment, Love and Business

Readers of "The Ball of Fire" will be quickly captured by the forceful character of the man of millions who dominates those of power in the metropolis of the United States. And Gail is one who instantly wins love and admiration because of her charm, wit and common sense.

PROTECTORATE TO GOVERN HAITIANS

American Forces to Remain on Duty in Negro Republic.

ORDER MUST BE OBTAINED.

Finances to Be Governed by United States Supervision—Haitian Congress Given Time to Discuss New Treaty, Which Will Guarantee a Sane Government For Island.

The American marine and naval expeditionary force will be maintained in Haiti for an indefinite period, pending the establishment of a limited American protectorate over the finances of the republic. The terms of this far-reaching action are set forth in a convention which has been negotiated between the United States government and that of President Dardigney and which is now under consideration by the Haitian congress and will also have to be submitted to the United States senate in the form of a treaty for ratification. The convention provides for the following:

First.—The establishment of a Haitian receivership of customs under American control.

Second.—The establishment of a native Haitian constabulary under the command of American officers.

Third.—The establishment of American control over the finances of Haiti to the extent necessary to prevent speculation and safeguard the interests of the American people.

Fourth.—The convention is to run for a period of ten years.

In explanation of the design of the United States in thus extending a financial protectorate over Haiti, Secretary of State Lansing authorized this statement, in which he referred to the Haitian arrangement as a "protectorate."

Secretary Lansing's Statement.

We have only one purpose—that is, to help the Haitian people and prevent them from being exploited by irresponsible revolutionists. These are not properly revolutions; they are unorganized enterprises which invoke no question of principle, and they are ruining the country. While they are in progress people are starving in the streets of Port au Prince because they cannot secure the supplies of food which abound in the country. Things have been going from bad to worse, and something must be done.

The United States government has no purpose of aggression and is entirely disinterested in promoting this protectorate. We have not even asked for Mole St. Nicholas. The arrangement, of course, would have to be considered by the United States senate for approval.

It was stated that no ultimatum had been delivered to the Haitian government setting a time within which it must accept the treaty. When the plan of the Haitian congress to adjourn was communicated to the Washington government a desire was expressed that the congress would not adjourn without action on the treaty. After this the Haitian president called congress into extra session for a month.

The congress must indicate whether it would proceed with the consideration of the treaty with a view to ratification. The American government has been insisting on prompt action and no delay, but it was denied positively that anything like an ultimatum had been delivered. Sufficient time, it was asserted, would be accorded the Haitians to consider the treaty in their congress.

Our Eye on Other Republics.

The negotiation of this treaty marks the first step in the intention of the government to adjust affairs in certain Latin-American countries involving European interests, which interests might lead to trouble between the United States and European nations after the conclusion of the European war. It is felt in certain administration quarters that when the war is over an effort may be made by one or more of the powers now engaged in hostilities to insist that the long overdue debts of certain republics of the western hemisphere, Haiti among them, shall be liquidated without delay, and that such European government or governments might be inclined to resort to force, with coincidental occupation, to compel obedience to the demands made.

Soldiers of France Express Appreciation of American Sympathy.

Soldiers of the French army have arranged for the establishment in Paris of three scholarships for Americans, to be endowed and perpetuated as a monument of gratitude for the sympathy which Americans have shown to France during the war and as an evidence of their appreciation of the work of the Lafayette fund.

Captain de Poilles wrote that all branches of the army are supporting the plan. The scholarships are in music, art and sculpture and will be known as the Lafayette fund scholarships of the army.

The captain wrote that 40,000 soldiers had been helped and comforted by the kits forwarded to them by the Lafayette fund.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Happiness.

Le Comte de Sabron finished his dressing.

Brunet surveyed his master from the tip of his shining boots to his sleek, fair head. His expressive eyes said: "Monsieur le Capitaine is looking well tonight."

Brunet had never before given his master a direct compliment. His eyes only had the habit of expressing admiration, and the manner in which he performed his duties, his devotion, were his forms of compliment. But Sabron's long illness and absence, the fact that he had been snatched from death and given back to the army again, leveled between servant and master the impassable wall of etiquette.

"There will be a grand dinner tonight, will there not, Monsieur le Capitaine? Doubtless Monsieur le Colonel and all the gentlemen will be there." Brunet made a comprehensive gesture as though he comprised the entire etat major.

Sabron, indeed, looked well. He was thin, deeply bronzed by the exposure on the yacht, for he and Tremont before returning to France had made a long cruise. Sabron wore the look of a man who has come back from a far country and is content.

"And never shall I forget to the end of my days how Monsieur le Capitaine looked when I met the yacht at Marseilles!"

Brunet spoke reverently, as though he were chronicling sacred souvenirs.

"I said to myself, you are about to welcome back a hero, Brunet! Monsieur le Capitaine will be as weak as a child. But I was determined that Monsieur le Capitaine should not read my feelings, however great my emotion."

Sabron smiled. At no time in his simple life did Brunet ever conceal the most trifling emotion—his simple face revealed all his simple thoughts. Sabron said heartily: "Your control was very fine, indeed."

"Instead of seeing a sick man, Mon-

True Secret of Keeping Youthful Looking

(The Beauty Seeker.)

"The real secret of keeping young-looking and beautiful," says a well-known hygienist, "is to keep the liver and bowels normally active. Without these requisites, poisonous waste products remain in the system, polluting the blood and lodging in the tissues, organs, and joints. One becomes flabby, obese, nervous, mentally sluggish, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow of face."

"But to get liver and bowels working as they ought, without producing evil after-effects, has been the problem. Fortunately, there is a prescription of unquestioned merit, which may now be had in convenient tablet form. Its value is due largely to an ingredient derived from the humble May apple, or its root, which has been called 'vegetable calomel' because of its effectiveness—though of course it is not to be classed with the real calomel of mercurial origin. There is no habit-forming constituent in 'sentinel' tablets—that's the name—and their use is not followed by weakness or exhaustion. On the contrary, these harmless vegetable tablets tend to impart tone and elasticity to the relaxed intestinal wall. Sentinel tablets, which may be procured from any druggist—a dime's worth will do—will prove a revelation to any constipated, liver-troubled person."

Chief Cause of Pimples, Blisters, Sallow Skin

(Messenger of Health.)

Unslightly eruptions, pimples, boils, blotches, sallow or muddy complexion are due to a sluggish liver, a constipated bowel—and a polluted blood stream as a consequence. How foolish in such cases to resort to outward applications, which can never have natural, permanent results. If more people only knew it, there is a very simple remedy, to be found in any drug store, which is as effective as it is harmless and quick acting. It is an old formula, long recognized by the medical profession, which has been put in tablet form, and at such small cost no one need now be deprived of its wonderful benefits.

"Sentinel tablets"—that's the name—are entirely vegetable and there's no habit-forming ingredient. You need only get about a dime's worth, and swallow one at bedtime to realize there's nothing else quite so good for the purpose. The action in the morning is so easy, so soothing, and instead of a weakening after-effect, you feel truly refreshed and invigorated. Sentinel tablets are not only the finest remedy known for constipation and torpid liver, but offer the sanest, most sensible treatment for complexion difficulties of the character mentioned.

Great Demand for New Constipation Remedy

They say that the advent of the "sentinel tablet" as a vegetable substitute for calomel has resulted in an extraordinary demand for this remarkable product. It seems to have made a hit particularly with those afflicted with chronic constipation, who were quick to recognize its advantages over calomel and the usual laxatives. Sentinel tablets, aside from their efficacy, doubtless owe their success largely to a tendency to aid in bringing about natural functioning—instead of encouraging the "cathartic habit." Also, instead of injuring the membranous lining of the organs involved, they exert a healing influence. Instead of weakening, they aid tone to the intestinal wall. And they work so easily and gently, they are of course preferred on this account to the violently acting purgatives. Their inexpressive nature is another reason for their popularity of sentinel tablets. One need procure only a dime's worth, and take one tablet upon retiring, to be convinced that the ideal remedy for constipation, torpid liver, and their many evil consequences, has finally been found.—Druggists Review.

sieur le Capitaine, a splendid-looking figure, with red cheeks and bright eyes, came off the boat to the shore. I said to myself: 'Brunet, he has the air of one who comes back from a victory.' No one would have ever believed that Monsieur le Capitaine had been rescued from captivity."

Brunet's curiosity was very strong and as far as his master was concerned he had been obliged to crush it down. To himself he was saying: "Monsieur le Capitaine is on the eve of some great event. When will he announce it to me? I am sure my master is going to be married."

Pitchoune, from a chair near by, assisted at his master's toilet, one moment holding the razor-strop between his teeth, then taking the clothes brush in his left grip. He was saying to himself: "I hope in the name of rats and cats my master is not going out without me!"

Brunet was engaged to be married to the kitchen maid of the Marquise d'Esclignac. Ordonnances and scullions are not able to arrange their matrimonial affairs so easily as are the upper classes.

"Monsieur le Capitaine," said the servant, his simple face raised to his master's, "I am going to be married."

Sabron wheeled around: "Man brave Brunet, when?"

Brunet grinned sheepishly.

"In five years, Monsieur le Capitaine," at which the superior officer laughed heartily.

"Is she an infant, are you educating her?"

"When one is the eldest of a widow," said Brunet with a sigh, "and the eldest of ten children—"

The clock struck the quarter. Sabron knew the story of the widow and her children by heart.

"Is the taxi at the door?"

"Yes, Monsieur le Capitaine."

Pitchoune gave a sharp bark.

"You are not invited," said his master cruelly, and went gayly out, his sword hitting against the stairs.

The Marquise d'Esclignac gave a brilliant little dinner to the colonel of Sabron's squadron. There were present a general or two, several men of distinction, and among the guests were the Duc de Tremont and Madame de la Maine. Sabron, when he found himself at table, looked at everything as though in a dream. Julia Redmond sat opposite him. He had sent her flowers and she wore them in her bodice. Madame de la Maine bent upon the young officer benignant eyes, the Duc de Tremont glanced at him affectionately, but Sabron was only conscious that Julia's eyes did not meet his at all.

They talked of Sabron's captivity, of the engagement in Africa, of what the army was doing, would not do, or might do, and the fact that the Duc de Tremont was to receive the decoration of the Legion or Honor in July. Tremont toasted Sabron and the young officer rose to respond with flushing face. He looked affectionately at his friend who had brought him from death into life. The moment was intense, and the Marquise d'Esclignac lifted her glass:

"Now, gentlemen, you must drink to the health of Pitchoune."

There was a murmur of laughter, Madame de la Maine turned to Sabron:

"I have had a collar made for Pitchoune; it is of African leather set with real turquoise."

Sabron bowed: "Pitchoune will be perfectly enchanted, Madame; he will wear it at your wedding."

Later, when the others had left them to themselves in the music room, Sabron sat in a big chair by the open window and Julia Redmond played to him. The day was warm. There was a smell of spring flowers in the air and the vases were filled with gladioli and sweet peas. But Sabron smelled only the violets in Julia's girdle. Her hands gently wandered over the keys, finding the tune that Sabron longed to hear. She played the air through, and it seemed as though she were about to sing the first verse. She could not do so, nor could she speak.

Sabron rose and came over to where she sat.

There was a low chair near the piano and he took it, leaning forward, his hands clasped about his knees. It had been the life-long dream of this simple-hearted officer that one day he would speak out his soul to the woman he loved. The time had come. She sat before him in her unpretentious dress. He was not worldly enough to know it cost a great price, nor to appreciate that she wore no jewels—nothing except the flowers he had sent. Her dark hair was clustered about her ears and her beautiful eyes lost their fire in tenderness.

"When a man has been very close to death, Mademoiselle, he looks about for the reason of his resurrection. When he returns to the world, he looks to see what there is in this life to make it worth living. I am young —at the beginning of my career. I may have before me a long life in which, with health and friends, I may find much happiness. These things certainly have their worth to a normal man—but I cannot make them real before my eyes just yet. As I look upon the world to which I have returned, I see nothing but a woman and her love. If I cannot win her for my wife, if I cannot have her love—He made an expressive gesture which more impressively than words implied how completely he laid down everything else to her love and his.

He said, not without a certain dignity: "I am quite poor; I have only my soldier's pay. In Normandy I own a little property. It is upon a hill and looks over the sea, with apple orchards and wheat fields. There is a house. These are my landed estates. My manhood and my love are my fortune. If you cannot return my love I shall not thank Tremont for bringing me back from Africa."

The American girl listened to him with profound emotion. She discovered every second how well she understood him, and he had much to say, because it was the first time he had ever spoken to her of his love. She had put out both her hands and, looking at him fully, said simply:

"Why it seems to me you must know how I feel—how can you help knowing how I feel?"

After a little he told her of Normandy, and how he had spent his childhood and boyhood in the chateau overlooking the wide sea, told her how he had watched the ships and used to dream of the countries beyond the horizon, and how the apple blossoms filled the orchards in the spring. He told her how he longed to go back, and that his wandering life had made it impossible for years.

Julia whispered: "We shall go there in the spring, my friend."

He was charming as he sat there holding her hands closely, his fine eyes bent upon her. Sabron told her things that had been deep in his heart and mind, waiting for her here so many months. Finally, everything merged into his present life, and the beauty of what he said dazed her like an enchanted sea. He was a soldier, a man of action, yet a dreamer. The fact that his hopes were about to be realized made him tremble, and as he talked, everything took light from this victory. Even his house in Normandy began to seem a fitting setting for the beautiful American.

"It is only a Louis XIII chateau; it stands very high, surrounded by orchards, which in the spring are white as snow."

"We shall go there in the spring," she whispered.

Sabron stopped speaking, his reverie was done, and he was silent as the intensity of his love for her surged over him. He lifted her delicate hands to his lips. "It is April now," he said, and his voice shook, "it is spring now, my love."

At Julia's side was a slight touch. She cried: "Pitchoune!" He put his paws on her knees and looked up into her face.

"Brunet has brought him here," said Sabron, "and that means the good chap is attending to his own love-making."

Julia laid her hand on Pitchoune's head. "He will love the Normandy beach, Charles."

"He will love the forests," said Sabron; "there are rabbits there."

On the little dog's head the two hands met and clasped. "Pitchoune is the only one in the world who is not de trop," said Julia gently.

Sabron, lifting her hand again to his lips, kissed it long, looking into her eyes. Between that great mystery of the awakening to be fulfilled, they drew near to each other—nearer.

Pitchoune sat before them, waiting. He wagged his tail and waited. No one noticed him. He gave a short bark that apparently disturbed no one.

Pitchoune had become de trop.

He was discreet. With sympathetic eyes he gazed on his beloved master and new mistress, then turned and quietly trotted across the room to the hearth-rug, sitting there meditatively for a few minutes blinking at the empty grate, where on the warm spring day there was no fire.

Pitchoune lay down before the fireless hearth, his head forward on his paws, his beautiful eyes still discreetly turned away from the lovers. He drew a long contented breath as dogs do before settling into repose. His thrilling adventures had come to an end. Before fires on the friendly hearth of the Louis XIII chateau, where hunting dogs were carved in the stone above the chimney, Pitchoune might continue to dream in the days to come. He would hunt rabbits in the still forests above the wheat fields, and live again in the freights his great adventures on the desert, the long runs across the sands on his journey back to France.

Now he closed his eyes. As a faithful friend he rested in the atmosphere of happiness about him. He had been the sole companion of a lonely man, now he had become part of a family.

J. D. JR., FACES INDICTMENT

Mine Officials Charged With Murder In Colorado Mine Cases.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 1.—Attorneys for the Colorado Mine Workers will endeavor to have John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and other Colorado mine officials indicted by the federal grand jury for the murder of mine workers by mine guards and members of the Colorado National Guard. This will be to avenge the conviction of John R. Lawson on a murder charge.

The operators who face criminal prosecution are, besides Mr. Rockefeller, Jesse E. Welborn, president of the Colorado Fuel & Iron company; David W. Brown, president of the Rocky Mountain Fuel company, and John C. Osgood, president of the Victoria American Fuel company, according to reports from the United Mine Workers headquarters.

United States Attorney Tedrow announced that a special federal grand jury would be called in October, but declined to say for what purpose. Testimony before the military court of inquiry confirms, however, reports that the federal government is investigating acts committed by the Colorado National Guard during the strike.

NO JAPANESE IN U. S. NAVY

Formerly Shipped as Servants to Study American Gunnery.

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 1.—There are no Japanese on any of the ships of the Atlantic fleet now engaged in target practice off the Virginia capes. Naval officers say there are no Japanese at all in the navy at present.

Their elimination has been brought about, since it was discovered that many of the little brown men who shipped as stewards and mess attendants for officers were really training to command ships of the mikado's navy.

Naval officers also say that they observed that during target practice on American ships, the Japanese remained on deck, or as near the guns as possible, apparently endeavoring to learn all they could about American methods of gunnery.

Filipinos are taking the place of Japanese in the American navy, although several ships carry negroes as mess attendants and valets for the officers.

No Evidence to Show German Agents Were Implicated.

New York, Sept. 1.—The police have discovered nothing so far to show that German agents were concerned in the alleged thefts of sugar and subsequent fires on outgoing vessels, for which seven men have been arrested already by Captain Tunney and his bomb squad. Six of these men who were working on harbor lighters, were arraigned and held for further examination merely on the larceny charge.

Captain Tunney said that his men were still expecting to make more arrests. The police department has requested the French government to send back here the bombs that were found on the Kirkoswald, when she was unloaded at Marseilles.

FIGHT WAGED ON "WAR IN INDIANA"

State Fair Officials Train Gatling Gun
of Criticism On Speedway Attraction.

OPPOSED TO THE COMPETITION

Backers of War Spectacle Claim
Labor Day Event Will Draw Big Crowd to State Fair.

By Dan L. Beebe, United Press Staff
Correspondent

Indianapolis, September 2—Charles Downing, secretary of the state board of agriculture, in a rapid-fire statement made to the United Press today exposed what he said was a systematic attempt of certain Indianapolis interests to pull the wool over the eyes of the Indiana people while the deftly extracted silver dollars from their pockets.

Dr. Downing declared that the "war spectacle" to be staged here co-incidental with the opening of the state fair is practically for the benefit of Indianapolis alone, although the widespread publicity campaign boosting it has advertised it as a state benefit.

"Indianapolis wants an armory for its three national guard companies, and it wants people from other cities who ordinarily attend the opening day of the state fair to pay for this armory," said Downing.

Intimations already have come to the United Press that certain people connected with the state fair were dissatisfied with the attitude Indianapolis business men have displayed in past years toward the fair. One employe of the fair stated that the merchants were not satisfied that Indianapolis drew the fair crowd each year, but actually sought to compete with the fair to keep the crowd up-town. Downing was asked how it happened that newspapers all over the state were giving more publicity to the "war spectacle" than to the state fair.

"It is simply a case of clever publicity of the free variety," he said. "So far as I have been able to learn the Indianapolis Armory association has not paid out a cent for newspaper advertising, yet its promoters taking advantage of the military spirit existing, are getting big headlines and columns of free space, especially in Indianapolis."

Downing said that for years the state fair has divided annually $3,500 among 350 state papers for advertising. He told of an editor of a Logansport paper, who, he said, returned some of the stories concerning the "war spectacle" with the statement that there must be a "nigger in the woodpile."

The state board secretary was asked whether he knew why the "war spectacle" promoters chose the opening day of the fair—Labor Day—for their "benefit." In answer he turned a gatling gun on Carl Fisher, president of the Motor Speedway, where the spectacle will be held, and one of the spectacle's chief promoters.

"Mr. Fisher thinks the state fair has invaded his rights because we are going to stage night auto races. His former manager, Moross, is working for us and conceived the race idea," said Downing. "Fisher said in a meeting of promoters that the Speedway grounds could be used only if the spectacle was held during fair week. Also they wanted to take advantage of our special railroad and interurban rates."

Backers of the "war in Indiana" show declared today that Mr. Downing was unduly alarmed. They said the spectacle would help the fair by drawing a bigger crowd. They said also that the feature would benefit the entire state because it would arouse interest in the national guard and would supply an armory that would be state institution. They said the money thus raised would prevent a state tax to raise the amount and that other spectacles could be given for the benefit of other counties. They did not explain how these other counties could arrange to co-operate with the state fair now how they could draw a crowd from Indianapolis, in exchange for the money spent here for the local armory. "Whats more, anyone who attends the spectacle will get his money worth" said a promoter.

The state fair has cut its admission fee in half—twenty-five cents for Labor Day. The admission fee for the spectacle ranges from $1 upward.

All persons knowing themselves to be indebted to us will please call and settle at once.

CHAUTAUQUA TENT IS RETURNED TO EVANSVILLE
Other Paraphernalia Has Been Re- moved from Park and Grounds Put in Good Shape.
The tents and other chautauqua paraphernalia have been removed from the city park and the grounds placed in good position. The big tent was returned to the Evansville firm from which it was rented. The workmen had no trouble in lowering the big top and after it was thor- oughly dry it was prepared for ship- ment. When folded ready for ship- ment the canvas took up a good portion of one end of a freight car. The small tents were also returned to the Evansville concern.
The folding seats were stored in the barn belonging to S. A. Rogers, near the park. The barn was rented because of its location near the park and is amply large for the seats and stage. After all the tents were removed the workmen placed the grounds in good condition.

SAYS COUNCIL IS EXCEEDING POWER

beginning July 1, next, Mr. Mercer said that a larger revenue is required to keep the library a growing institution. He said it was now on a splendid basis of efficiency and the board hoped to steadily improve it. He declared that there are many expenses each year in connection with the management of the institution and few books could be purchased with the present revenue. He declared that the board had shown a conciliatory attitude all along with the council and had been keeping its levy down to the small amount for years upon the promise that it would be increased "next year." But, he continued, the city was always hard pressed for money and the library fund was slighted until the court decided that the board had the right to fix the levy. He said he felt assured that the public would like to see the library continue to grow in usefulness and that its efficiency could not be continued without an increased levy.
